Employee Assistance
Professionals Association
33rd Annual Conference
March 14 - 16, 2012*

"Opening
New Doors to the Future of EAP"

Renaissance Charlotte Suites Hotel
Charlotte, North Carolina

Message from the Conference Chair:

Welcome to the North Carolina Employee Assistance Professionals Association's 33rd Annual Conference!

We are "Opening New Doors to the Future of EAP" by providing you with a phenomenal slate of speakers! Some topics covered will be how to make social media work for us, as well as ways to work with substance abuse in our ever growing, aging population. There is something for everyone and to be sure, valuable information to take back to your workplace.

While at the conference, take time to visit the exhibitors and enjoy some fellowship with your peers from around the state and beyond! Part of the benefit of attending a professional conference is to rekindle old friendships, and make new EA friends!

We are very honored to have Dr. Paul Roman, as our keynote speaker Wednesday afternoon. He is perhaps the most respected EAP researcher in the field. Dr. Roman developed the Employee Assistance "Core Technology" which formed the foundation for the practice of Employee Assistance.

I would like to thank each of the presenters as well as the sponsors and exhibitors. Thank you for being a part of the process in making this year's conference a success! We could not do this without your support.

Also, a big thank you goes out to all the conference committee members. Having a seasoned team of people to work with is a blessing for a chairperson! Thanks for all your input, enthusiasm and hard work.

Enjoy the conference!

Sincerely,

Gina Penland, Conference Chair

Top 10 Web Secrets for the Next Decade: What Every Professional Should Know
Marina London, LCSW, CEAP

Marina is known for her informative and entertaining presentations on social media marketing, blogging, Twitter, and web design for EA and mental health professionals, and has presented her "Web Secrets" at numerous local and national conferences. In this plenary session, Marina will show attendees how to develop a more proactive approach in incorporating cutting edge social media tools into their practice/business. She will identify which internet trends are most relevant and demonstrate how to implement those trends that directly impact professional development and business practice.

Tao of Twitter and Blogging

In the break out session, Marina is going to help participants evaluate if Twitter and/or blogging are relevant to their professional/EAP practice. She will demonstrate specific social networking techniques so attendees can optimally participate in social networking, thereby directly impacting their professional development and serving their professional/EAP clients' needs.

Marina London, LCSW, CEAP

Marina is the Web Editor for the Employee Assistance Professionals Association and a former EAP executive. In this capacity, she maintains and writes content for the Association's website. She is the author of the award winning iWebU blog, which is geared towards helping professionals use social media and technology to grow their businesses and private practices. She also writes a quarterly column on "Technology Trends" for the Journal of Employee Assistance. Marina has a Bachelor of Arts cum laude in Psychology from Yale University and a Master of Science from Columbia University.

Hallmarks of EAP Research

Paul Roman, PhD

My principal research activity for the past 15 years has been a national study of substance abuse treatment, with repeated data collections such that we have a tremendous amount of information on organization, evidence based practices and staffing.

Paul Roman, PhD

Dr. Roman has been Director of the Center for Research on Behavioral Health and Human Services Delivery, Institute for Behavioral Research, University of Georgia, since 1986 where he is also a tenured faculty member in the Department of Sociology. In university-wide competition, he has been awarded three consecutive 5-years terms as a Distinguished Research Professor. Previously he was the Favrot Professor of Human Relations and Professor of Epidemiology at Tulane University where he served on the faculty from 1969 to 1986. He received his Ph.D. from Cornell University in 1968. His research is focused on the sociological aspects of alcohol problems, with particular attention to the organization of treatment systems and to the workplace and the design of intervention efforts to deal with employees with substance abuse problems. His current research is focused on patterns of organizational structure associated with organizational innovation and change among substance abuse treatment providers. Other recent research has centered on referral patterns associated with different types of employee problems referred to employee assistance programs, national patterns of drinking and drug related behaviors and attitudes among employed persons, and the structural and process characteristics of EAPs.

Ethics for Employee Assistance Professionals

Robert Buchanan, MA, LPC

Robert will examine the EAPA Code of Ethics by looking at the Professional Competency, Professional Conduct, Confidentiality, Conflict of Interest, Business Practices, Public Responsibility, Electronic Communication and Record Keeping. He will also compare and contrast the EAPA Code of Ethics with that of counselors and social workers. He will also help participants become familiar with the concepts presented in order to encourage application of the concepts in individual settings.

Robert Buchanan, MA, LPC

Robert is a clinical supervisor with Value Options in the Health and Performance Solutions Division working with clinicians who provide EAP assessments, management referrals and workplace services for client companies in North Carolina and across the United States. Mr. Buchanan has two earned Masters Degrees – one in counseling psychology and another in urban ministry. He is an LPC with a broad range of experience in the clinical field including individual, group, IOP, and inpatient treatment in both mental health and substance abuse. He has many years experience with Fitness for Duty evaluations for safety –sensitive employees. He also served in parish ministry and other non-profit services. He has successfully completed at least six ethics presentations to groups of counselors, social workers, psychologists and other medical professionals.

Future of EAP: Panel Discussion

John Burke, MA, Chuck Taylor MA, and Rich Paul, MSW, CEAP

The EAP industry has experienced continual change since its formal inception dating back to the early 1970's. Through this change, EA professionals have been resilient and adapted to change to meet the changing needs of employers and employees. Currently, the EAP industry is faced with issues of commoditization, price sensitivity, lessening of perceived value, increased competitiveness and industry consolidation. All of these challenges are indicative of the typical life cycle of any service and indicates a certain level of industry maturity. This presentation and break-out session will address all of these challenges and discuss new directions and opportunities for the industry. Where there is change there is opportunity and the presenters will review actual and anticipated areas of opportunity.

John Burke, MA

John of Burke Consulting, is a business development consultant working with EAP and other related companies within the US and internationally. His work focuses on assisting organizations in the re-engineering and retooling to meet the changing marketplace needs. Currently he is working exclusively with Empathia based in Wisconsin. He has held a range of positions in the EAP profession for over 30 years as well as a frequent speaker and writer.

Chuck Taylor, MA

Chuck is the Vice President of Sales for the Federal Division of ValueOptions. He is responsible for leading the execution of ValueOptions' growth strategy for the federal sector which includes the government and military. He has enjoyed diverse roles within the EAP industry for over 30 years and has held several positions within EAPA on an international and national level.

Rich Paul, MSW, CEAP

Rich serves as senior vice president of health and performance solutions at ValueOptions. He has oversight and development responsibilities over EAP, Work/Life and health and wellness as well as other employer support services. He has served as President of the Employee Assistance Society of North America (EASNA) and has authored dozens of articles on a variety of issues that impact upon productivity and organizational performance.

Working with Treatment Resistant Clients in the EAP setting

Gabriel Rogers, PhD, LPCS, LEAP, CEAP

In this training, participants will peruse current research data on the importance of treatment resistant clients and why short term settings have to treat more difficult clients these days. This will be done by exploring the most common types of treatment resistant clients and examine why some clients become resistant to treatment. Will look at 8 strategies to improve care of difficult clients and discuss the importance of the therapeutic alliance in working with these resistant clients and effective treatment planning methods.

Gabriel Rogers, PhD, LPCS, LEAP, CEAP

Dr. Rogers is the Clinical Coordinator of Carolinas HealthCare System EAP located in Charlotte, NC He has served as a Board Member of NC Board of LPCs and has also had a myriad of experiences in different counseling settings. He currently serves as an Adjunct Professor for Graduate schools in the areas of Counseling and Psychology. He also operates a small private practice specializing in individual, family and Christian counseling.

Suicide Prevention and Intervention in EAP and IOP Settings

Dan Wilemon, Med, LPC and Rhonda Ferrell, LPC, CEAP

This session will educate and prepare participants to practice the SAFE model for prevention, intervention and postvention of suicidality. The SAFE model is designed for anyone to use, not just behavioral health professionals. Supervisors, leaders, medical service providers and coworkers can apply the simple, logical steps of the SAFE model to assist in prevention and intervention of suicidality.

Dan Wilemon, Med, LPC

Dan has been a licensed clinician for 20 years, working at all levels of care in mental health treatment, including on-call intervention services. He is the lead therapist for both the Mental Health Partial Hospital and Intensive Outpatient Programs at Novant Health.

Rhonda Ferrell, LPC, CEAP

Rhonda has over 20 years of experience in EAP from Burke Taylor to Value Options to Novant EAP in Winston Salem, NC. Rhonda created the SAFE program in response to a need for a suicide prevention model that guides lay persons as well as professionals in determining how to effectively respond to a potentially suicidal person. Rhonda's specialty and passions is using innovative and synergistic methods in a brief counseling setting for post trauma symptoms and anxiety/depressive disorders. Her newest adventures are at her stable working with equestrian assisted psychotherapy, combining her appreciation for horses and counseling.

Substance Abuse and the Older Adult

Alyson Kuroski-Mazzei, MD

Attendees will become familiar with the signs and symptoms of common substance abuse and dependency issues. They will consider how symptoms of these disorders can impact one's overall physical and mental health, as well as ability to function. Attendees will also review screening for alcoholism and substance abuse in the older adult, and will look at the available treatments and interventions for the older adult population. They will also talk about what it means to live with the disease of addiction.

Alyson Kuroski-Mazzei, MD

Dr. Kuroski-Mazzei obtained her medical degree from Midwestern University and completed her general psychiatry residency training at Duke University. She then furthered her training in forensic psychiatry at the University of North Carolina and is currently board certified in Psychiatry, Forensic Psychiatry and Addiction Medicine. Dr. Kuroski-Mazzei is the Medical Director at Fellowship Hall, Inc., in Greensboro, NC and holds academic appointments at both the UNC School of Medicine and Duke University. Dr. Kuroski-Mazzei further serves as the Associate Director of the UNC Forensic Psychiatry Residency Program and is the Director of Training for the UNC Forensic Psychiatry Program & Clinic.
